

February 1, 2002

Regional Spotlight: An Agricultural Balancing Act

The Oregon Department of Agriculture promotion signs along Interstate 5 tell part of this story. Ryegrass. Irises. Christmas trees. Hops. Grapes. Unfamiliar crops are identified for the drivers speeding along the highway to and from Portland...

Full Story

*Dan Hammelman
Hammelman Farms
cauliflower field*

- ▶ Find your local cooperative web site
- ▶ Partners recipes
- ▶ Online archives
- ▶ Subscribe
- ▶ About our cooperative system
- ▶ Contact us

'A' Students of Alfalfa

This Southwestern Wisconsin family makes high-quality hay that consistently hauls in forage-contest hardware.

Reassessing Our Food Security

The public, policy-makers, producers and their cooperatives take a closer look at what many have taken for granted.

Team Tater

This potato grower relies on employees and his cooperative's agronomy support for everything from sampling to surfactants.

- 4.5 Million Miles and Counting:

Colorado trucker counts on Cenex lubricants to keep his tanker trucks rolling, mile after mile.

- Owner Inspection:

CHS members tour export and processing facilities geared toward gaining global access to consumers.

- CHS On Its Way to Adding Value for Producers:

Regional cooperative reports net income of nearly $179 million for fiscal 2001.

Take our Cooperative
Partners survey!